

FastTrack™

2006 PRICE STRUCTURE

COSTS

FastTrack™ has been designed so that all forms processing and data management can be carried out locally if an institution chooses to do so. At the same time, subscribers have the option of purchasing these services from Polaris Research Associates thereby eliminating the need to acquire OMR scanner hardware and software and limiting a college's FastTrack™-related tasks to questionnaire administration only.

Institutions have two options with regard to data collection. The first is to use scannable OMR forms which require purchasing and processing on an ongoing basis. Forms and processing costs are provided below. The second option is to utilize our web-based system with a one-time cost. The latter requires that institutions possess the appropriate database (MySQL) and server support software.

FastTrack™ has four pricing components:

1. one-time software licensing fees;
2. annual questionnaire costs or one-time web survey cost;
3. an optional yearly subscription fee; and
4. optional services bureau fees.

The current price structure for each of these is provided below.

Total costs associated with FastTrack™ implementation, therefore, have two components: a one-time software licensing fee and yearly forms and questionnaire processing costs should this option be chosen.

The decision to purchase either the single station or network software licence depends on how many users are anticipated at a given institution. With a large number of users, the network version is more efficient and effective as it minimizes software installation and database management time. Since subscription fees and service bureau fees are optional, FastTrack™ requires a minimal initial investment. In addition, an institution can choose to begin with a single-station licence and upgrade to the network version at a later date.
